

Nowadays if a boy believes he's a girl or vice versa, we are supposed to affirm that and encourage him or her.

If we meet a person with Anorexia who believes he or she is fat do we affirm that person's belief in themselves? Do we encourage that person to eat less and affirm them that they are fat? Of course not!

Then why do we affirm a child or an adult with a penis who believes he is a girl?

And why do we affirm a child or an adult with a vagina who believes she is a man?

In Kindergarten we learn that boys have a penis and girls have a vagina. That still holds true today!

Even if a man has his penis or testicles removed will that person ever be able to become pregnant or give birth? He is still a man.

And a woman with a beard who has had her breasts removed still has her ovaries. Will she ever be able to produce sperm? Will that person ever obtain "manhood"? She is still a woman.

There is no such thing as transgender.

Stop believing the lie.

brikorn.com

Nowadays if a boy believes he's a girl or vice versa, we are supposed to affirm that and encourage him or her.

If we meet a person with Anorexia who believes he or she is fat do we affirm that person's belief in themselves? Do we encourage that person to eat less and affirm them that they are fat? Of course not!

Then why do we affirm a child or an adult with a penis who believes he is a girl?

And why do we affirm a child or an adult with a vagina who believes she is a man?

In Kindergarten we learn that boys have a penis and girls have a vagina. That still holds true today!

Even if a man has his penis or testicles removed will that person ever be able to become pregnant or give birth? He is still a man.

And a woman with a beard who has had her breasts removed still has her ovaries. Will she ever be able to produce sperm? Will that person ever obtain "manhood"? She is still a woman.

There is no such thing as transgender.

Stop believing the lie.

brikorn.com

Nowadays if a boy believes he's a girl or vice versa, we are supposed to affirm that and encourage him or her.

If we meet a person with Anorexia who believes he or she is fat do we affirm that person's belief in themselves? Do we encourage that person to eat less and affirm them that they are fat? Of course not!

Then why do we affirm a child or an adult with a penis who believes he is a girl?

And why do we affirm a child or an adult with a vagina who believes she is a man?

In Kindergarten we learn that boys have a penis and girls have a vagina. That still holds true today!

Even if a man has his penis or testicles removed will that person ever be able to become pregnant or give birth? He is still a man.

And a woman with a beard who has had her breasts removed still has her ovaries. Will she ever be able to produce sperm? Will that person ever obtain "manhood"? She is still a woman.

There is no such thing as transgender.

Stop believing the lie.

brikorn.com

Nowadays if a boy believes he's a girl or vice versa, we are supposed to affirm that and encourage him or her.

If we meet a person with Anorexia who believes he or she is fat do we affirm that person's belief in themselves? Do we encourage that person to eat less and affirm them that they are fat? Of course not!

Then why do we affirm a child or an adult with a penis who believes he is a girl?

And why do we affirm a child or an adult with a vagina who believes she is a man?

In Kindergarten we learn that boys have a penis and girls have a vagina. That still holds true today!

Even if a man has his penis or testicles removed will that person ever be able to become pregnant or give birth? He is still a man.

And a woman with a beard who has had her breasts removed still has her ovaries. Will she ever be able to produce sperm? Will that person ever obtain "manhood"? She is still a woman.

There is no such thing as transgender.

Stop believing the lie.

brikorn.com

The Transgender

Anorexia Paradox

The Transgender

Anorexia Paradox

The Transgender

Anorexia Paradox

The Transgender

Anorexia Paradox